Swiss Diplomats Tell of Visit To American Jailed in Iran

By The Associated Press

Two Swiss diplomats in Teheran said yesterday by telephone that they had been allowed to see Zia Khan Nassry, a naturalized American being held in Evin Prison on charges of espionage. He is believed to be the only American still held by Iran.

One of the Swiss diplomats, who declined to be named, said Mr. Nassry was "in good physical shape and treated quite well."

The two officials at the Swiss Embassy, which represents United States interests in Iran, were allowed to visit him over the weekend. "We do not know that he will actually be put on trial," one of them said. "However, we will seek more visits with him and will follow up his case."
